

All Around The Hub.

HIGH PRICES.

The recent advance in prices of nearly everything we eat is a matter of very serious import to many who have families to provide for from a limited income, and a rise of several cents per lb. on beef and other meats, 16 cents on butter and fifty cents a bushel on potatoes, with a general advance on all other commodities, means to them, "You must go without many things which you cannot afford." We have news of the communists in our nature; we recognize that there always have been and always will be, so far as we can look forward, rich and poor. Why the comparatively few should have more than they need, and the many perish in a way less deserving actually suffer for the necessities of life, is one of those mysteries never yet explained; but it does indeed seem hard that high prices should rob the laborer of the very sustenance that makes him capable of work. We do not feel badly when we hear that the grapevine in France is a failure for high prices for wines cause no starvation; we hear with no pang of regret of a big advance in the price of any luxury, but when the prices of breadstuffs and other necessities go up, we know that it means privation and suffering for those who have enough of both already.

POSSIBLY A MISTAKE.

Although the great change which has come about in the mode of navigation within a few years, steam having to a great extent superseded the use of sail, has wrought other changes in the methods of conducting the business of transportation by water, we are not sure that a mistake was not made when Boston filled up many of its docks in which formerly floated hundreds of sailing vessels, from the full-rigged ship of a thousand tons burthen to the small fishing smack. India, Central, Long, Commercial and Lewis' wharves were, by the laying out of Atlantic avenue, shorn of their fair proportions, and though possibly the steamers that have taken the place of sailing vessels do not need so much room as was formerly essential, still we find that the shipping interests are crowded out from the water front of the city proper and obliged to seek accommodations at South and East Boston, Chelsea and Charlestown, hardly room enough having been left for the coastwise and harbor steamers, which, as a matter of convenience, should have berths at points between the station of the New York and New England railroad and Lewis' wharf. The Baltimore steamers and the boats of the outside line between Boston and New York appropriate for their own use nearly all of the docks of Central wharf, and frequently a boat of one or the other of the lines obliged to discharge elsewhere; the down east steamers find none too much room at India and Long wharves; the Nantasket Beach steamers leave not much room at Howe's wharf, and the Hingham and Nahant boats need all the accommodation they find at India wharf. Boston gained much land by filling the docks; time must demonstrate whether the city was really benefited by it.

HON. LEOPOLD MORSE.

Boston has had the good fortune in the past to be represented at Washington by men of superior talent and of unblemished character. The city has never been disgraced in the councils of the nation by any action of one of her representatives; on the contrary, the fact of being elected from the hub almost insures a man influence and important positions, and the one whose name heads this item, by his independent and honorable course has gained for himself the respect and support of a host of intelligent voters who were opposed to him politically.

One of the most important measures Mr. Morse has advocated is the sale of the navy yard at Charlestown, believing that it was for the interest of Boston and of the country that the navy yard should be disposed of. No one can read his letter addressed to the Boston press and doubt that he is sincere; no one can fail to acknowledge that his cause has much weight.

A WONDROUS HEALER.

Many of the residents of Boston and suburban towns who have been suffering with scrofulous diseases and other bodily ailments of aggravated character, have found surprising relief and most remarkable cure by a sojourner at the Bradford Springs Hotel, Bradford, N. H., the landlady of whom are Messrs. McCoy & Nichols, formerly of Boston. The Springs have had a wide reputation for a half century or more, as possessing great efficacy, and with increasing patronage the accommodations for visitors have been much enlarged, though the very reasonable rates for board remain the same. We can verify the assertion that sufferers with complaints alluded to above will most assuredly be benefited by these waters, and they will find the proprietors and their ladies to be the most agreeable of hosts.

OFF FOR EUROPE.

John L. Stoddard sailed Saturday, for Europe, in quest of new material to keep the Stoddard lecture fresh and interesting. His course of travel contemplates a journey through Holland, Belgium, Sweden, Denmark and Norway, and thence to Switzerland and France. To illustrate the beauty of scenery on his route Mr. Stoddard took with him the well known and able Boston photographe, Mr. J. W. Black, who will take all the views, which will form a unique and exclusive collection. His progress will be observed with interest.

A phosphate that never fails to pay for itself, and is unique in its effects.

A farmer who has used it fifteen years writes us: "The results of fifteen years' trial of Bradley's Phosphate on various crops have satisfied me that it has never failed to increase the crop more than enough to pay for the phosphate itself more than twice over. It has also proved very lasting in its effects, as I saw an increase in the grain yield of the field that followed the corn doubled the crop, as did the crop of corn. There was only one crop left without phosphate in the field, and that was a good crop of barley, and the grain had caught fire." HANSON ORDWAY, Rydell, Mass., Nov. 2, 1882.

LOCAL TOPICS.

Arrest of a Rogue.

Our community have good reason to believe that the rascal who has been connected with the various orgies of shop and stores in our various towns for some time past, has at last been caught. Monday, about 12, officer J. T. Pease and Mr. John Jackson were at the Post Office, when they saw an unknown man turning into Front street, and as the officer thought he looked like a man whom he had seen in the square the night that J. Crane's shop was entered, he determined to follow him, and in company with Mr. Jackson the officer shadowed the fellow as far as the factory of S. W. & E. Nash, where they lost sight of him and returned, after making search behind stone walls, etc.

Between 1 and 2 o'clock officer Pease passed down Sterling street, examining the different factories to see if everything was all right, and said nothing. The steps of C. P. Hunt & Co's factory to rest, when he heard a dog barking. The whining of Mr. W. E. Baker's dog, which had accompanied him, prevented him from hearing the steps of the man in search to conceal himself, and thinking the rogue would probably leave in a hurry after seeing him, the officer sprang for the man and collared him. No satisfactory answer being made to interrogations, he was searched and a two bushel sack was found rolled up under his overcoat, a bottle of mulga, a copy of the Boston Post of Oct. 10, (the middle page and paper evidently to be used in covering glass to deaden the sound when it was broken), several keys, some of them filed for skeleton keys, and a bottle of whisky also being found him.

The officer then took his prisoner to the lockup, thus giving man a chance to identify the officer. Officers Pratt and Thomas, of the police station, who came to the Land and Pratt identified him as James Washburn, noted burglar, who has served a term of six years in the State prison and been sent to Houses of Correction several times for robberies committed, his last service of two years at Dedham being under the name of James Cummings. Washburn was an overcoat which tallied with the one of a man stolen from Gifford's tailor shop at South Abington, and the coat being taken there it was identified by Mr. Gifford. This man was also identified by the police as having been seen that place the night of the robbery of the Braintree Clothing Store, and commenced this season with an act of larceny at Little Pond, Braintree. Messrs. Holton, Cushing and Lovell are running their teams regularly, and as the prices are very low, no one need to go without the necessary article.

REVIVAL.

Rev. C. C. Luther has continued his religious labors in the Baptist church this week, the interest continuing to increase. On Tuesday evening another delegation from the North Scituate society visited the Weymouth church and gave a general impetus to the interest by their earnest remarks. Several members of the Pilgrim and Union churches were also present at the meeting.

Last Saturday afternoon occurred an exciting and interesting game of Base Ball, between a nine composed of workmen from the shop of A. W. Clapp & Co., and a nine from the shop of J. W. Hart & Co., which resulted in a victory for the former, as seen by the following score:

Obituary.

In the list of articles donated to the St. Jerome church fair we omitted to mention a splendid meerschaum pipe, presented by Calvin Blanchard, of N. Weymouth.

The ladies in charge of Table No. 1 were Mrs. Kerrigan, Mrs. H. C. Burke, Mrs. Veader, Mrs. Curtis. This table cleared a net profit of $450.

The proceeds of the fair were sufficient to clear off the entire indebtedness on the church department.

A meeting was held in Engine hall last Monday evening, for the purpose of organizing a fire company, and there was a very full attendance. The meeting having organized, a motion was made to seek what action could be taken towards forming a new company. There appeared to be perfect harmony, and the best of feeling was prevalent, as the work of organization went on, thirty-one names being obtained and accepted as members of the Active Engine Company. The meeting then proceeded to elect officers for the company, the following gentlemen being chosen: President, Christopher W. F. Foreman; 1st Assistant, John W. Burr; 2d Assistant, H. H. Torrey, Steward; B. P. Thomas, Clerk and Treasurer. The E. S. Beals, Dick, and Laddor Company have elected officers for the ensuing year: President, Christopher W. F. Foreman; John W. Cushing, 1st Ass't.; H. H. Torrey, 2d Ass't.; B. P. Thomas, Clerk and Treasurer. The E. S. Beals, Dick, and Laddor Company have elected officers for the ensuing year: President, Christopher W. F. Foreman; John W. Cushing, 1st Ass't.; H. H. Torrey, 2d Ass't.; N. O. Simmonds, Clerk and Treasurer.

The young and able son of the village is coming into his own, and it is hoped that the search for stolen goods will result in the detection of the receiver, as probably there are other parties concerned in the racket.

Since Jan. 20 the factories of E. A. Hunt and Geo. E. Porter have each been entered twice and Mr. Crane's store once, the depredations in this case indicating that Washburn had a hand in all these burglaries.

One strong point against him is the fact that Hunt's factory the robbery evidently cut his hand with broken glass, blood being found about a window, and one of Washburn's hands has a partially healed ragged cut upon it which he would not account for.

Mating.

A party of residents of this and neighboring towns visited Plymouth last Monday, and though they had no map to guide them, made a successful tour on the trail. And returning laden with the spic and span of the springtime. The various objects of Pilgrim interest were visited, and the party enjoyed the day thoroughly.

Baptism.

At the Baptist church last Sunday evening attracted a crowd of spectators, the house being completely filled. Among the candidates for baptism were two little girls, dressed in robes of white. Several other candidates it is expected will be baptized on our next from Sunday.

A Warning to Boys who Read Tricky Books.

Jesus James, the Impostor, Murderer, Thief and Rebel.

My opinion is given from my personal knowledge of some of the acts of the James boys, with whom I was on quite intimate terms at one time in their history. My home is in the vicinity of Russellville, Ky. In 1862 I was a law student with a relative in Russellville, and was there at the time the bank was robbed by the James boys. At that time Russellville had a population of about 4,000. The bank was a private institution, and was conducted under the name of N. Long & Co., and was situated at the end of the town. Mr. Long, the principal proprietor of the bank, was a particular friend of the James family, who lived in the vicinity of Russellville. Mr. Long had, with Mr. Norton, donated a sufficient amount of money to the father of Frank and Jesse James to support him during the several years he was in college studying for the ministry, and he was also a friend of George Hale, the father of Wood Hite, and one of the James boys.

During the civil war, Logan county, in which Russellville is situated, sent two companies of men to fight on the confederate side, and the town was so largely Southern in its sympathy that there were only four or five outspoken Union men in the whole place, even at the time the raid was made on the bank. I went into the confederate service from that town, and while in the army became personally acquainted with Cole Younger and George Shepherd. The Shepherd family lived a few miles from Russellville, and were well known. After the war closed, I returned to Russellville and went to college, and one of my classmates was Wood Hite, and from him I heard frequently about the war adventures of his cousins, Jesse and Frank James.

About the middle of March, 1868, five men came to Russellville, two stopping at one hotel and three at another, and among this party I recognized Cole Younger and George Shepherd, and I discovered that the others were Frank and Jesse James and Dick Little. Younger registered at the hotel on Coleman and Little at Woods. Younger associated with the merchants of the town, and acted as though he was going to establish a new store in the place. Shepherd, Little and the James boys associated with the horse traders, and engaged in jockeying horses while in town. In the evening the visitors gave a poker party in Jesse James' room in the hotel, and for three nights I took a hand in several poker games, and when I saw them as an old friend of Younger.

The raid on the bank was made during the hour of Saturday, March 21, 1868, while I was examining some records in the court-house, about 300 feet distant from the bank, and on the same street. Five men rode down the street, facing the bank, two stationed themselves at the intersections of two streets nearest the bank, behind a row of trees which lined the sidewalk, and three entered the bank one by one whom presented a counterfeit note to Mr. Long and asked him if it was good; when told it was not, the three drew their pistols and demanded that the persons in the bank, N. Long, Hugh Barclay and Thomas H. Simmons, should surrender. Mr. Long attempted to escape, and was shot, the ball taking effect in the upper part of his hand, inflicting a flesh wound only. He was then felled to the floor by a blow from a pistol. The robbers then commanded the bank people to keep still, assuring them that they would not be harmed; but, nothing daunted, Mr. Long sprang into the street and gave the alarm, while the two men on horseback kept up a continual fire at him; striking at him, but not hitting him.

By this time the alarm had spread over the business part of the town, and the citizens came flocking to the scene of action in a great hurry, but being unarmed, were compelled to retreat into the houses along the street. Some few managed to seize weapons of an inferior character, and while the loads held out, fired at the robbers quite freely. But for every shot fired by the citizens, the men on horseback, and one of those in the bank, who had come to the door, sent back three in return. O. C. Owens, whose residence adjoins the bank, stepped from the door and fired at the man on the steps, who returned the fire, striking Mr. Owens in the side, inflicting a severe, though not dangerous wound. The alarm having spread all over town, and the place being rather too hot for comfort, the desperadoes left, carrying their booty with them, firing down the street as they rode off.

I heard the first shot fired, and ran into the street and went toward the bank; saw Shepherd and Younger mounted on horses at the intersection of the streets in front of the bank; saw Little standing in the outer doorway of the bank, and behind him was Jesse James, and farther back in the block I saw Frank James. As I approached the bank, saw Younger and Little shooting a group of citizens in the street, and I met Long running toward me with his face covered with blood. Not being armed at the time I hurried away from the scene, not wishing to unnecessarily expose myself to the wild shooting.

From the information I collected in the afternoon I felt satisfied that Jesse James was the one who first attacked Mr. Long, his father's benefactor, in the bank, while Little assaulted Mr. Owens in the doorway, and frightened Messrs. Barclay and Simmons away through a side door, thus leaving Frank James to secure the money in the open safe. It was ascertained by actual settlement of accounts that the bank was robbed of $14,350. No one was killed at the shooting in and about the bank, though nearly a hundred shots were fired. The day after the robbery a well-known and respectable citizen of Russellville informed me and several others that he saw a group of citizens of the best and most respectable citizens helping the bank robbers, but he would not give the name. Since then circumstances strongly indicate that he meant Wood Hite, who was known to have been in Russellville an hour before the robbery. The day before the robbery Younger, Little, Shepherd and the James boys were seen by several persons seated on the grave of an ex-governor of Kentucky, in the suburbs of Russellville, in close consultation, and it was after the robbery, supposed that the raid was planned in that graveyard.

Several days after the robbery Shepherd was arrested as one of the principals in the affair, and on trial was identified by a number of citizens as being the man on horseback who fired shots at the people who came to the assistance of Mr. Long at the bank. During the trial of Shepherd his wife, who was a fascinating woman, was at his side in court, and by her winning ways, and apparently such an influence on the jurors as to cause them to assess the steepest punishment possible on Shepherd.

CAUGHT.

A Paris milliner has just concluded a contract by which a dealer in game in Berlin undertakes to deliver the skins of 30,000 pigeons during the season, for the adornment of hats and bonnets.

The birds are to be caught in all parts of Germany and taken to the railway yard, and there killed and immediately skinned, the skin being forwarded to Paris and the carcasses retained for a small sum each on the spot.

MY RAMBLES.

What a relief to the heart of one who loves nature, to escape from the populous town, to a sunny, Sabbath morning in May, to the green fields of the country—to follow the sinuous windings of some romantic sun-dial, or stretch at length in a pleasant sun-dial, and finally alight on the sweet apple blossom—to feel how beautiful is nature to feel how beautiful is God.

“Oho, and send the house of prayer! To the woodlands and there!

“The swelling organ is dead, Like the wild music of the wind-swept grove.

There, in solitude, the past become the present, and long lost pleasures are revived and rejoyced. There, the pictures hung up in the chambers of memory, the faithful pictures of loved ones who have gone down to the grave before us, become freed from the soil which time and the contaminating intercourse with the world has clothed them, and we hold communion with them by living friends. Memory there becomes dearer than hope. Memory there becomes dearer than hope. Whatever the future may bring, it is in memory that we have in reserve for us. It is an immeasurable and enduring consolation to know there are many sweet flowers blooming on the silent sepulchres of the college we left, to gladden the eye of memory.

All Around The Hub.

To OUR CITIZENS.

At the last meeting of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland, it was proposed that under its auspices there should be erected in the city of Washington a statue or monument in memory of their former comrade, the late President James Abram Garfield, and it is with much pleasure that the committee announces that its efforts have met with such liberal response from all parts of the country as to warrant the assurance that the work will be consummated. It is proposed that the work when completed shall be no longer the property of the society, but be formally transferred through their Chief Magistrate to the people of the United States to be a monument of their affection for all time. An opportunity to unite in the work, and thereby make the structure in every respect worthy the name of America's foremost people is now presented, and to that end, it is requested that on the 30th instant, & whenever all hearts turn in love and grateful remembrance to the soldiers of the Republic, and comrades strew their graves with flowers, that a feature of that day shall be the offering and soliciting of contributions to the end set forth. It is the desire of the committee that this work be general; one in which all the people can take part without feeling it to be a tax; and it is therefore suggested that no contribution from any one person on that day shall exceed one dollar. The press and postmasters throughout the country will receive and forward subscriptions; or, if preferable, a committee of citizens may take charge of the work under such plan as they may deem most efficacious. In either case it is desirable that a list of subscribers be kept, as all subscription lists, as well as copies of papers publishing the same, are desired for deposit in the corner-stone of the statue, and will be carefully retained for that purpose.

COUPOON TICKETS.

The Boston and Albany railroad have been in trouble ever since they adopted the system of books with coupon tickets. Two cases recently occurred, in one of which the company appears to have been in the right and the party opposing it entirely in the wrong.

Albert F. Upton, of Newtonville, entered a train for Boston, and finding he had left his season ticket coupon book at home, offered to give the conductor two coupons the next morning. This the conductor refused and demanded regular fare. Mr. Upton would not pay and the company has brought suit against him. The conductor was right, though as a matter of courtesy to a gentleman whom he knew he might have yielded to the request of Mr. Upton; but that gentleman would have had to ask a similar favor on his return in the afternoon, and it was his duty to see that he had his book with him.

The other case was somewhat different. Mr. W. C. Gaudet had a ten-dollar coupon book between Faneuil and Newtonville stations, but took a train at Newton, which is between the two stations, and offered a coupon, which was declined by the conductor, who ordered the arrest of Gaudet, as he would not pay cash fare. No arrest was made, as a warrant was refused, but Gaudet has brought an action against the company for false arrest, claiming $10,000 damages. As it is usually the case, the coupons were sold and accepted as only good from one point to another, in this case from Faneuil to Newtonville, the conductor was correct in not taking one for a fare from Newton. The results in the two cases will be looked for with much interest.

MINISTERIAL VACATIONS.

We are sometimes accused of being cynical, but we do not plead guilty to the charge, though we admit that we have a way of looking beneath the gloss of custom and fashion and thinking for ourselves. We don't object to any one's having a good time in an innocent manner; still we can but smile when we read that highly salaried divines find their dues so arduous that their church voted them a vacation and money enough to travel six months or a year in Europe. Why, there are hundreds of clergymen throughout our land whose duties are as arduous as those of any city preacher, but country parsons are not often invited by their societies to go abroad. Should the preacher who lives well and is honored by such generosity, of his labor while yet in the prime of life? Is not, in too many cases, the Master's work performed upon a bed of roses? We do not believe any one who considers the matter carefully can have failed to notice how very unhealthy the ministerial profession is becoming in cities.

GOV. LONG'S INTENTIONS.

We have been highly amused at reading in various papers just what Governor Long had to do, as given by him to "our reporter." Now we do not boast of any special te-a-te-a with our excellent governor, but this we may say, from the very commencement of his political career we have had close acquaintance with him, and in spite of reported interviews, we know that from conversation with him within a week, in regard to both state and national politics, that his intention is, if the people of Massachusetts want him to serve them as Governor next year, not to decline a nomination; if they choose to retire him from the office he has so acceptably filled, he would like to retire; and while he would not raise a finger to dictate the name of a candidate to succeed him, he would heartily approve and endorse the nomination of Hon. Byron Weston. We can wipe out with a dash of the pen all of the absurd stories in regard to his figuring for a place in Congress. John D. Long never did and never will need to ask for office. Should Hon. B. W. Harris voluntarily decline a nomination, Gov. Long would without doubt be nominated to succeed him, but he will not go into the field against Mr. Harris.

Should Senator Hoar decline a renomination, or should matters so turn that a change would be made, Gov. Long will no doubt appreciate the honor of succeeding him; but he will never allow his name to be used to depose either Mr. Harris or Mr. Hoar. We care not for rumors; we write what we know to be Governor Long's sentiments.

Comrades of the Grand Army, although the roll of our membership is larger than ever before, yet we cannot forget the mournful fact that the little girls over graves of our dead, increase in number.

Comrades, As by the blessing of the Infinite Father, we are spared in health and vigor to fulfill the obligations of this Sacramental Day, let us with consecrated hearts, assemble at the graves of our departed comrades, and with flower and wreath renew our vows of Fraternity, charity, and Loyalty.

IX. The Arion Ceciliae of Weymouth was one of their pleasing musical entertainments at Lovell's Corner, last Monday evening, under the auspices of the Ladies Social Circle. We will not particularize but merely say that all did themselves great credit. The A. C. are composed of 8 good voices, which blend well together and always display great taste in shading, something overdone by many others.

Next Sunday afternoon Mr. Luther will preach a special sermon upon the odd theme, "The Victory of the Kids". His evening subject will be "Then—and then", a panoramic picture in three scenes.

FRIDAY, MAY 26, 1882.

All Around The Hub.

It is about time for people to be seriously considering where they will locate during the warm months, and yet, with one or two exceptions, there has been no day since the first of May, up to the time of our writing, when one would have felt tempted to leave the comforts of a city home for the bleakness of the shore or the mountains. Great preparations are making, however, at all the resorts, and the probability now is that, unless we shall have, as last year, an unusually damp and cold summer, the exodus from the city during the months of June, July and August will exceed anything ever witnessed here. Every harbor along our coast, from the eastern part of Maine to the shores of Long Island Sound, offers its attractions and is growing to be a fashionable watering place. Every quiet village in New England, in sight of which there is a mountain, is becoming a favorite summer resort.

In the immediate vicinity of Boston competition for patronage is going to be rampant. Thousands upon thousands have been expended at Nantasket beach to make the place attractive; hotels and cottages spring up on every side, and the ranks of travel there will be immense. Melville Garden will again present its lovely and less noisy attractions, and its quiet and good order will draw hosts to Duxbury Landing. The North Shore is also looming up, and with a plenty of money and heaps of energy are now laying plans and doing work to make the beach at Revere and the rocks at Nahant rival in attractiveness Nantasket and Colchester. There is no danger, that our people will not have abundant opportunities to part with their redundant change.

STATUTES.

If the mania for statues continues Boston will eventually lose its titles of the Athens of America and Hub of the Universe, and will be known as the city of statues—we believe we have already in this country a monumental city. As a people we are given to running to extremes, and at the present rate we shall not exactly run this matter of erecting monuments and statues into the ground but we shall have a public square on which to place one, though, extreme in this matter as in others, the citizens of Boston now appear determined to make a public square of every available piece of land, be it square, circular or triangular. The latest status offered to Boston is one of Col. Robert G. Shaw, the noble martyr to the cause in leading colored troops to fight for the liberty of their race. Certainly if we have a monument or a statue erected to one's name or an honor, no one is better entitled to it than Col. Shaw.

In regard to the status of Col. Shaw we see it is proposed to place it on the grounds in front of the State House. We certainly would not object to such a position of the memorial of our young hero, but we really can't see how it can be placed there without disturbing the present symmetry of the grounds, as on one side is a statue of Daniel Webster, on the other a statue of Horace Mann. Still the matter may be properly and satisfactorily arranged.

OUR STREETS.

The time was when Bostonians had just cause to be proud of the generally excellent condition of their streets, but for some reason that condition is not what it used to be. As the business of the city increases it is to be expected that there will be a much larger amount of heavy teaming which, to a certain extent causes more wear and tear on our pavements, and the continual upheaval for the purpose of getting at the water pipes and gas pipes has a very demoralizing effect upon them. All kinds of experiments have been tried in the hope of finding a pavement generally superior to the old cobble stone; wood and asphalt have been tried as being less noisy, but both are slippery, and wood will not wear well where heavy teams are constantly passing. Iron has been used with fair satisfaction; we believe the pavement in Court street from Washington street to the court house stands the test of constant and heavy travel as well as any ever laid in Boston, but the cost is too great. Narrow granite blocks work fairly, but they soon become smooth; and after all nothing has been found better in all respects than the old cobble stone.

But beyond the condition of the streets for the use of teams, there is something to be said in regard to their cleanliness, now as compared with the past. We do not know why it is, but, unless our memory fails us, we have never, except after a lengthy period in winter when there has been snow on the ground, so that street cleaning was an impossibility, seen the streets in the business portion of the city in such horrid condition for pedestrians as they have been in during the present month of May. We hope that we are destined to follow the example of New York and grow more dirty as we grow in size.

THE President of the Andover Farming Club, at Andover, Mass., has been experimenting with Phosphates, and reports the following result:—

"I experimented last year with Bradley's Phosphate, in comparison with a special manure for corn and a home-made superphosphate. The field had a light coat of manure. Two rows were planted with each kind, alternating through the whole field. I used about a heaping tablespoonful in the hill, and sowing and thinning the same of each kind. They were harvested separately, and each lot weighed. When I used Bradley's Phosphate, the yield was one hundred and eleven bushels per acre, calling seventy-six pounds of ears of shelled corn. Neither of the others equalled this by a number of bushels, and the home-made article was very far behind. I am satisfied that this Phosphate is the best and cheapest fertilizer I can buy."

M. C. ANDREWS.

There is a general prejudice on the part of physicians against phosphate sold under the name of "Superphosphate." This is not entirely true, however, as "Superphosphate" is a genuine physician's prescription prepared and sold under it being it with the trade name of "Superphosphate." No other label medicine is so heartily endorsed by medical men. It is a sure cure for all throat diseases, and is a valuable medicine for singers and speakers to keep the voice clear."

The Royal beauties of Europe use much of these personal attractions to the influence of Ayer's Hair Oil, which keeps the hair fresh and bright.

LOCAL TOPICS.
WEYMOUTH
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

The following is an alphabetical list of rockers in Weymouth Commerce. They are not all the remaining of the present century, probably 1865. The company owned three vessels, and exported and imported goods and merchandise between the coast and foreign ports. Some of the vessels were, Ship Commerce; Brig Adams and Schooner Venus. The ship Commerce was commanded by Capt. John Tirrell, and was built at Calais, Maine. Before he died in 1867 this commander of the others. More of this commercial history will be told when we come by the time of the anniversary.

These members of the Company with a list of Capt. John Tirrell.

Samuel Fort $1000, Capt. John G. G. Fort $1000, and a Jacob a non-named.

This organization was probably not of long duration, as the shipping interests of Weymouth were not great, and during the last war with England, Elijael Fort Esq., was treasurer of the Company.

The extract below is from the book of Col. Thomas Vinton, who is remembered as the author of almanacs for several years and was joint author of a universal geography, and compiler of the school reader, "The New Universal Reader," as a year or two since, the late Thomas Nash published an almanac upon the Vinton family, which was reprinted with corrections by J. W. P. This extract differs in several particulars from either of them in regard to the names of the villages or names of the dead, and listen to addresses by Revs. Frary and Bolster. Col. Lovell will be on hand, as he is expected home from Chicago this evening. Wm. A. Simmons will deliver the original Decoration day.

Academy.

While Mr. F. Richards' milk wagon was standing in front of Wm. Wallace's house on Front street, Monday morning, from some cause the horse became frightened, probably by the noise of another horse, and the Isaac Little House Co., of Hingham, was also present. The dwelling house of Mr. H. B. Cushing, a widow, was on fire. The alarm was given at 7:30 o'clock, and the fire department was called, including Mr. H. Cushing, and a bell was rung. The fire was extinguished, and the fire department was present in the building.

Mr. C. D. Lovell will be on hand, as he is expected home from Chicago this evening.

The order of exercises announced by Col. Lovell, Commander of Post 58, was published last week, and full particulars given. Sunday next Post 58 will parade to the call of the Commander of Post 68. It is believed that this custom is not prevalent at the present time, although such a service could not fail to interest the boys.

The season is indeed backward, and the flowers usually seen at this time have not appeared this year, yet, having heard the call, let us gladly co-operate with every honorable effort of the Grand Army boys, that we may have a part with them in commemorating a service that will ever stand in lustre on the noble deeds of our fallen heroes.

HENRY.

The order of exercises announced by Col. Lovell, Commander of Post 58, was published last week, and full particulars given. Sunday next Post 58 will parade to the call of the Commander of Post 68. It is believed that this custom is not prevalent at the present time, although such a service could not fail to interest the boys.

Mr. Thomas Vincent, a Presbyterian minister, has been a prominent figure in Weymouth, and distinguished him by his ministerial labor in the Time of the Plague, which awfully prevailed in that city in the years 1665 and 1666. In memory of his services, and in honor of his memory, a stone was erected in his honor in the town of Weymouth, and a tablet placed on his grave, which was erected by his son, Mr. John Vinton, his Father, was born Feb. 24, 1730, his wife was Sarah Colton, he died Dec. 24, 1780, and his son, John Vinton, his Father, was born Jan. 14, 1754, "Myself," Thomas Vincent, and son, was born June 8th, 1780. The tablet says, "John Vinton, my Father died Dec. 24, 1815."

There is another item of interest to the family, which is the neighborhood of the Turnpike, which was built in 1804. This house was built August 24th, 1804.

This house was at the place of Weymouth's stone, Independent Square, So. Weymouth, the chimney room, and the house was built later years, the "Old Colony House."

"My house, where my Father's old house was raised Aug. 24th, 1814. My barn was built in 1814, and the house was built in 1815. The house and barn, were on the site of Mr. Edward Rosefield's residence and barn. They were destroyed by fire some years since."

The Bates Family.

In an article published in a late Weymouth Gazette, allusion is made to a family of the name of Bates, now in Boston, and in the neighborhood of Boston, and in succeeding numbers a brief description of its various branches. For the information of readers I give in brief the list of houses which grow out of the root of the Bates family, so ancient is the name that I can hardly call them by the name of the trunk, but only branches of the great Bates tree, which is common all over England.

Mr. Bates, a native of England, was children of one son who died previously.

years went to Spain, and sailing for mechanics, the boat he had, a

which throws light upon his family

ancestry, giving birth of children and of the death of children of two wives, which is the oldest part of the Bates family.
